Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 19-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Johnson, et al-3725953.

Johnson discloses a seal having a bladder 21 filled with a resilient rubber tubing material 22. However, the softness of the material, and the shape and thickness of the seal is not disclosed. Applicant has failed to provide any disclosure as to the criticality of any of these attributes or characteristics. Lacking any criticality, the examiner considers all of these features to be obvious design choices, noting that it would appear as though the prior art seal would perform equally as well as the applicant's seal as the prior art seal is disclosed as being useful to seal against faces having differing contours. No advantage, particular purpose or solution to a problem was disclosed by the applicant. Therefore, it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to modify Johnson to obtain the invention as specified in claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 10-01-02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The examiner does not contend that it would have been obvious to fill tube 22. The examiner contends that tube 22 is the fill material. Barnett teaches that the seal as a whole should not identically mimic human fat tissue. However, this is not what the claim stipulates. The claim states that the material inside the bladder is of the claimed hardness, not the bladder itself, or the combination of the bladder and the fill material. The examiner contends that it would have been obvious to have formed tube 22 out of a material having the claimed hardness as simply a matter of design choice, noting the lack of criticality of this hardness in the applicant's specification. Once tube 22 were placed inside bladder 20, the resulting softness of the seal (20,22) as a whole would be somewhat harder than tube 22 alone. Therefore it would not have the problem of having a hardness identically mimicking that of human fat tissue. The applicant did not mention any criticality with regards to the specific hardness of the material being claimed.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
